Headings

- (A) A rise in sea level is one of the results of global warming.
(B) The effect of climate change on human health
(C) Crops and food supply are affected by global warming.
(D) How climate change affects all living things.

38. Climate change may affect people's health both directly or indirectly. For example, heat stress and other heat related health problems are caused directly by warm temperature and high humidity. Untreated, heat stress can be a very serious medical problem.

39. Climate change may change the world's ecosystems - all living things are included in and rely on these places. Many of these places depend on a balance of rainfall , temperature, and soil type. A fast change in climate could upset this balance and put many living things in danger.

40. Global warming may make the sea level become higher. Why? Well, warmer weather makes glaciers melt . A glacier is a large sheet of ice that moves very, very slowly. Some melting glaciers add more water to the ocean. Warmer temperature also cause the water to expand. When the amount of water increases in the ocean, it takes up more space and the level of the sea rises.

41. Global warming may make the Earth warmer in cold places. People living in these places may have a change to grow crops in new areas. But global warming also might bring damage to other places where we grow crops. In some parts of the world, people may not have enough food to eat because they can not grow food that they need.

7 Many parents are becoming increasingly worried about their children's interest in video games . They believe that playing for too long can be harmful to their health . Parents are afraid that their children's personality be affected and many have often arguments with them about their playing habits . Actually , there's no scientific reason that video games are dangerous even if played for many hours a day . Another difficulty for parents is that , although computer equipment is quite cheap , the games themselves are often very expensive .
